Teacher and Librarian Read-Aloud Guide

Best for: Ages 3–6, preschool to early primary.

Read-aloud time: 5–8 minutes.

Themes: perseverance, frustration, growth mindset, practice, rest, courage, and trying again.

Materials: the book, a jump rope or soft rope, red ball, practice cards, certificate, coloring page.

Before reading

Ask one gentle question. Children may answer aloud, point, or simply think.

- Have you ever tried something that felt too hard at first?
- What does your body do when you feel frustrated?
- What could “not yet” mean?

During reading

Pause at these story moments.

- When Yok watches the jump rope: Why does the rope look exciting and scary?
- When Yok gets tangled: What feeling might Yok have in her cheeks or chest?
- When Yok says she is not a jump-rope creature: What label is she putting on herself?
- When the teacher says “not yet”: How does that change the story?
- When Yok tries one tiny piece: Why is a small step still a real try?

After reading

Choose one quick follow-up.

1. Say it: Practice the words: “I cannot do it yet.”
2. Make it smaller: Break a hard task into one tiny piece.
3. Move it: Step over a line, then hop over it, then try again.
4. Celebrate it: Give each child a Not-Yet Brave Try certificate.

Parent Conversation Card

After the Story: Talk About Trying Again

Ask gently

1. What made Yok want to stop trying?
2. How did her body feel when the rope got tangled?
3. What did “not yet” help Yok remember?
4. What tiny piece did Yok try first?
5. What is something you cannot do yet?

Practice together

Take turns saying one try-again sentence. Keep it warm and low-pressure.

- | | |
|-------------------------------|--|
| ▪ I cannot do it yet. | ▪ Mistakes are part of learning. |
| ▪ I can try one tiny piece. | ▪ Closer is progress. |
| ▪ I can rest, then try again. | ▪ I can feel proud before it is perfect. |

Home activity: Choose one small skill - zipping a jacket, drawing a shape, catching a ball, or putting on shoes. Say “not yet,” choose one tiny piece, try once, then rest. The goal is practice, not perfection.

Try-Again Steps Practice Cards

Cut out the cards. Use them when something feels too hard.

Children may point to a card instead of speaking. That still counts as a try.

Say “not yet.”

Try one tiny piece.

Rest, then try again.

Step first.

Hop once.

Closer is progress.

I am still learning.

I can feel proud.

Try again when ready.

Adult tip: Avoid turning “try again” into pressure. Sometimes the brave step is to rest, name the hard feeling, and return to one small piece later.

Not-Yet Brave Try Certificate

This certificate is awarded to

for trying one tiny piece today.

Try-again steps I practiced:

- ☐ I said "not yet." ☐ I made it smaller.
- ☐ I tried one tiny piece. ☐ I rested.
- ☐ I tried again when I was ready.
- ☐ I felt proud before it was perfect.

Yok's Little Try

A quick activity for after reading. Children may draw, point, act, or answer aloud.

1. Say

Try the words:

“not yet”

☐ I said it, whispered it, or pointed to it.

2. Choose

Pick one tiny piece.

Draw or say the first small step:

3. Try

Step, hop, or practice once.

☐ I tried one small piece.

4. Rest

Rest, then try again when ready.

☐ I can come back later.

Can you find these in the story?

- ☐ Rabbit
- ☐ The jump rope
- ☐ The small red ball
- ☐ Tom's red sneakers

- ☐ Abby's smile
- ☐ Yok's tangled tail
- ☐ One tiny hop
- ☐ The little rope door

A tiny try can open a little door.
