Teacher and Librarian Read-Aloud Guide

Best for: Ages 3–6, preschool to early primary.

Read-aloud time: 5–8 minutes.

Themes: speaking up, small voices, courage, listening, helping, and trying again.

Materials: the book, a soft toy, practice cards, coloring page, certificate.

Before reading

Ask one gentle question. Children may answer aloud, point, or simply listen.

- What can make speaking in a group feel hard?
- How can someone show an idea without using a big voice?
- What does a good listener do when a friend is trying to speak?

During reading

Pause at these story moments.

- When Yok knows the answer: What do you notice about Yok's body?
- When her voice comes out small: Does a small voice still matter?
- When the teacher says, "Try again when you are ready": Why is waiting kind?
- When Yok sees the missing Rabbit: What can Yok do besides speaking loudly?
- When Yok gives her tiny roar: How did her small voice help someone?

After reading

Choose one quick follow-up.

1. Breathe it: Take one slow breath together.
2. Show it: Point to something in the room and let a partner guess.
3. Say it: Practice one brave word: "There," "Help," or "Hello."
4. Celebrate it: Give each child a Tiny Roar Helper certificate.

Parent Conversation Card

After the Story: Talk About Tiny Roars

Ask gently

1. What made Yok's voice feel small?
2. What did the teacher do that helped Yok feel safe?
3. How did Yok help the child with the missing Rabbit?
4. Why can pointing or showing be a kind way to communicate?
5. What tiny roar could you try this week?

Practice together

Try the three tiny-roar steps. A whisper, point, or gesture can still count.

1. Breathe

Take one slow breath.

2. Show

Point or show what you mean.

3. Speak

Say one small brave word.

Home activity: Hide a small toy in plain sight. Let your child practice pointing first, then saying one brave word such as "there," "look," or "help." Praise the attempt, not the volume.

Tiny Roar Practice Cards

Cut out the cards. Practice one small brave word or sentence at a time.

Children may point to a card, whisper, act it out, or say it aloud.

I know.

Please listen.

It's over there.

I need help.

I can try again.

There.

Can I show you?

My voice is small.

Thank you for listening.

Adult tip: The goal is communication, not loudness. Let children use a point, gesture, whisper, card, or single word before asking for a full sentence.
